

DELIVERING ON OUR PROMISES-NEW DAY CENTRE PLANS

The majority Conservative Group are about to Deliver their promises yet again with new day centre developments in Sunbury and Stanwell.

In April 2006, the Conservatives voted in favour of a vision for brand new facilities for elderly residents in Sunbury and Stanwell. That evening, the Liberal Democrat opposition Councillors voted against this vision.

Notting Hill Housing Trust (NHHT), which was selected as the Borough's partner for the Sunbury facility, has submitted planning application for a state of the art day centre together with new ExtraCare Housing on the site of the old centre in Benwell Court.

Local residents have visited NHHT's Elgin Court and were delighted with its facilities, on which the proposed Sunbury centre is modelled.

The ground floor day centre will have separate dining and activity rooms, which can be opened out onto one large area, a hobbies room with an IT suite, and a hairdresser. The area matches that of the old Benwell Centre.

A full programme of activities will be offered to users, and the centre will be open to extra care residents and the Sunbury community, both in the daytime and evenings.

Pending completion of the day centre, alternative facilities are being provided locally at Churchill Hall in Sunbury Common.

The 39 new ExtraCare flats will provide affordable housing through rental and shared ownership, and some for private sale. There will be a balance of one and two-bedroom flats and 15 with their own balcony or patio area. The modern facilities will cater for residents' long-term needs. Care packages and full personal and social support will be on hand at all times.

The Borough continues to improve services generally for frailer residents. Meals on Wheels now operates seven days per week and the Spelthorne Personal Alarm Network continues to expand.

Membership of Spelride has been re-opened, and the service now offers transport to the day centres for user.

Vivienne Leighton, Portfolio Holder for Health and Independent Living, commented :-

"I am really delighted about this new centre which will have pride of place in Sunbury and provide residents with the high quality services that we, and they, want and deserve."
